Thousands Of Service Families Lose Out On Chance For $15 Million Rent Cut

THERE will be no rent cut this year for thousands of military families forced to live in substandard government housing.

Although legislation providing a rent reduction worth $15 million to 35,000 Service families passed both Houses of Congress (the Senate approved the bill on 23 July), hope for enactment of the measure faded this Controversial changes approved by the Senate at the insistence of the Navy Department—which the Penta-gon had placed in charge of the bill -resulted in House Armed Services Committee refusal to take the measure to conference.

In approving the legislation initially, the House Committee said it did not subscribe to the philosophy that military families should have to live in inadequate housing. The Committee gave the Services two years in which to make substantial improve-ments to such housing or else tear it down. Meanwhile they were authorized to let families occupy such housing at lower rents and pocket the remainder of their quarters allowance.

The Senate Committee upped the time limit to three years and authorized indefinite occupancy of such quarters at reduced rent if the size of the house is the only factor which makes it inadequate, or if the Services certify that no other housing is avail-Chairman Carl Vinson (D., Ga.) of the House Committee refused to consider a compromise measure. According to Capitol Hill sources, Mr. Vinson believes he made clear to the Services that his Committee does not favor the continued use of substandard housing, and he was chagrined because the Navy insisted on extend-ing the program into the indefinite

Don't Forget Combat Men In Pay Raise Gen. Taylor Urges; They Are "Backbone"

General Maxwell D. Taylor, USA, has come out in strong support of a military pay increase, but in doing so he has evidenced the Army's concern that the forth-coming plan might slight men with com-bat leadership qualifications in favor of technicians.

Newly released testimony by the Chief of Staff in closed sessions before the Symington Subcommittee in the Senate reweals General Taylor's attitude—certain to be the Army's position in forthcoming presentations to the Cordiner Committee.

In response to an inquiry from Senator Duff (R-Pa.) regarding manpower problems in the Army, General Taylor said that his Service, like the others, is faced with a shortage of skilled technicians.

BLACK SHOE ARMY

The Army will abandon low quarter brown shoes and socks in favor of black beginning 1 September.

The changeover comes 1 month before optional off-duty wear of the new green uniform begins. The Army said that stocks of brown shoes are now depleted to a point where the switch should be made.

The order affects all male personnel. Only exception is that sand colored knee length socks will continue to be worn with the new summer garrison uniform of short sleeve shirt and shorts.

84th Congress Scores Impressively For Services

Here is a complete round-up of the steps Congress has taken to make Service life more attractive.

FAMILY MEDICAL CARE

This $76 million plan (Public Law 569) is a marked departure from tradition in that it establishes an insurance program under which military dependents will receive medical care at civilian facilities when space is not available in a Service hospital or when there are no nearby military hospitals. The Pentagon cur-

First Session Box Score, P. 2

This has been a stellar legislative year for the Armed Forces. New military career incentive benefits worth hundreds of millions of dollars have been approved by the second session of the 84th Congress.

The list includes just about everything in the Pentagon's 1956 hope chest. When added to the multi-million dollar program enacted for the benefit of Servicemen and their families during the first session, the list is even more impressive. The second session overhauled and broadened family medical benefits with a program that will go into effect in December.

That the 85th Congress will have much important military legislation to consider beginning in January is assured. A number of important measures failed to clear Capitol Hill this session—and, of course, there will be a new pay raise request. This will be introduced early in the new ssion, according to present Pentagon

Air National Guard's 2,177 Planes and 63,773 Men Termed "Immediately Ready" for Varied Missions of War or Peace

BY MAJ. GEN. WINSTON P. WILSON, USAF Chief, Air Force Division, National Guard Bureau

THE Air National Guard is celebrat-ing this year as its tenth anniversary, but, like the regular establishment, we have an Army heritage that enables us to trace our lineage much further back into history.

As early as 1911, California National Guardsmen had formed an aeronautical detachment their 7th ompany, Coast Artillery Corps. The next year the National Guard

acquired its
first military aviator when Lt. Col. C. B. Winder of Ohio was graduated from the Army's Signal Corps Aviation School at Augusta, Ga. By the Fall of 1915, the First Aero Company of the New York National Guard had been organized un-der command of Capt. Raynal C. Bolling and "four Curtiss aeroplanes of a mili-tary type" were assigned to it for train-

TWENTY-N I N E OBSERVATION SQUADRONS were organized in the years immediately following World War I, and they were inducted into federal service with the rest of the National Guard during 1939 and 1940 as events in Europe inexorably involved us in World War II.

It was not until 30 June 1946 during the post-war reorganization of the National Guard, though, that Colorado's 120th Fighter Squadron gained Federal recognition and thereby became the first Air National Guard squadron, as such, to come into being. Within another to come into being. Within another year, there was a total of 308 units and these included 51 fighter squadrons, equipped with F-51's and F-47's, and 9 light bombardment squadrons flying B-

A certain amount of skepticism prevailed at that time, even among our own valled at that time, even among our own people, that we would ever be able to maintain these "tremendously complicated" aircraft. And because most of them were "war wearies" in a critical state of disrepair, we were much more concerned about getting them "around the nettern" then we were with any the pattern" than we were with any combat capability they might have pro-

Nonetheless, within the next two years, we had assimilated an apprecia-ble number of the considerably more complex F-80 and F-84 jets into our pro-gram, and all of the 66 ANG squadrons recalled to active duty during the Ko-rean emergency took their own aircraft to their duty stations (combat fields in the case of two Wings) with them.

IN THAT CONFLICT, incidentally, four of our pilots distinguished themselves as jet aces. They were Maj. James Hagerstrom of Texas with 8½ MiG kills; Maj. Robinson C. Risner of Oklahoma with 8; Capt. Clifford D. Jolley of Utah with 7, and Capt. Robert J. Love of California with 6.

These are performances of which all Air National Guardsmen are proud, and I—personally—am confident that we could improve upon them in any future war. We are better manned and better equipped to do so.

As of 31 May 1956, membership in the Air National Guard totaled 63,773 offi-cers and airmen, and of the former, some 3400 were pilots.

On the same date there were 2177 aircraft in our inventory and 1549 of these were jets. Our experience upon the oc-casion of numerous test-alerts and, even more realistically, in contributing 17 active-duty detachments to the Air DeTHE GUARD'S STORY

The Journal, taking note of the largest National Guard encampment in peacetime history, has presented special reports during the past three weeks on how our National Guard is meeting its challenge in the overall defense effort. Two weeks ago, all defense effort. Two weeks ago, there was an article by Maj. Gen. Ed-gar C. Erickson, head of the National Guard Bureau, followed by last week's report from Maj. Gen. Donald W. Mc-Gowan, Chief of the Army Division. (See page 10 for editorial comment).

fense Command on a full-time "day-light" basis in certain strategically vital areas where a requirement for added air protection exists, have proven that some of our airplanes are inadequate for the missions we have been assigned. Even this situation is showing definite improvement, however,

FOUR OF OUR TACTICAL RECON-NAISSANCE SQUADRONS, for example, even now are receiving RF-84F Thunderflashes—a swept-wing photo photo fighter that is new even to the Air Force. Five others are operational air Force. Five others are operational in the F-89C's that have been assigned to them. Our squadrons in North and South Dakota have been given the first of the F-94C's that we have received because tactical considerations have indicated the desirability of enhancing the all weather considerations have an expensive all weather considerations. our all-weather capability in that area. Another squadron, the 159th of Jacksonville, Fla., has just received the first of the F-86D's with which it will be requipped in a program designed to test the preparations we must make and the support we must have to accept larger quantities of them.

The assignment of these advanced-type aircraft to the Air National Guard, course, is evidence of Air Force re-ect for our increased capabilities hich, undoubtedly, is based at least which, undoubtedly, is based at least partially upon improvements in our "aircraft in-commission" status and the total number of tactical flying hours that we achieved over the past year. Respectively, these jumped from 62 per cent to 65 per cent and from 225,790 hours as of 30 June 1955 to 257,556 on 21 May 1955 31 May 1956.

A PART OF THE FLYING TIME, of course, is creditable to the 36 flying training periods for our aircrews that recently were authorized in addition to the 48 four-hour unit training assem-blies and the 15 days of field training that annually have been scheduled for that annually have been scheduled for all Guardsmen. I believe, however, that it accurately reflects the increased emphasis upon combat preparedness for which we have been striving.

Public Law states that the primary mission of the Air National Guard is to provide "trained units and qualified individuals for active duty in the Air Force in time of war or national emergency and at such other times as our National Security may require."

Our 27 Wings, 4 Air Resupply Groups, 94 flying squadrons, 3 Tactical Control Groups and 3 Communications Groups are immediately ready for that mission

Groups and 3 Communications Groups are immediately ready for that mission if it is asked of them, and they are no less prepared to perform the State-ordered duties—the quelling of civil disturbances, the assistance of the community in times of disaster, the flying of more writer missions, with which the New York are in the community of the comm of mercy-missions—with which the National Guard traditionally is associated.

These Bills Were Stopped Short

LEGISLATION worth millions of dollars to military families and affecting career prospects for many failed to clear the 84th Congress. In addition to the Substandprospects for many failed to clear the Still Congress. In addition to the Sustainard Housing Bill (see page 1), other major bills which were lost for this session include the Academy/ROTC credit bill, worth an estimated $10,000 over a 30-year career to thousands of officers, the dual pay restriction measure and the new Administration-backed plan to improve promotions for nurses and medical specialists.

Here is a summary of legislation which will need to be reintroduced next year.

Substandard Housing

This measure, which provided rent cuts for 35,000 military families forced to oc-cupy inadequate housing, almost made it. However, Navy efforts to expand the supposedly emergency measure into a full-time program (see separate report in this issue) effectively foreclosed its chances for last-minute enactment. It can be expected that a subdued Pentagon will come back to the Capitol next year in a mood to accept a substandard quarters program with whatever limitations the Congress wishes to impose

Academy/ROTC Credit

Legislation authorizing pay credit for time spent at the Service Academies has been introduced repeatedly in the last several Congresses. This year, the plan was expanded to include time spent in ROTC training, but like its successors in previous sessions, the measure failed to win required support. In the House the measure never got out of subcommittee, despite the interest and efforts of Committee-member Representative W. Ster-ling Cole (R., N.Y.) who sponsored the $75 million plan. Assistant Defense Secretary Carter Burgess believes that de-nial of Academy/ROTC pay credit is rank discrimination and he can be expected to make another try for the plan when the new Congress meets next Jan-

Dual Pay

Similar efforts have been made for several years to modify or entirely erase the dual pay restrictions which prevent retired military personnel from holding Government jobs. The Senate approved legislation this session authorizing retired personnel to earn up to $10,000 in combined retired pay and Government salary, but the House Post Office and Civil Service Committee failed to follow through with action on the bill. The Kilday House Armed Services Subcommit-tee also investigated the problem and received Pentagon recommendations received Pentagon recommendations that the dual compensation laws be wiped off the books, but took no final action. Meanwhile, a Civil Service Commission study of the restrictive laws is still pigeon-holed at the Commission and there is speculation that the recommendations if they are broken out bemendations—if they are broken out be-fore the end of the year—will assist the Pentagon in making a renewed bid for revision of the dual pay laws next Jan-

Nurses And Medical Specialists

Legislation to improve career opportunities for military nurses and medical specialists was submitted to the Congress in mid-May but the proposal was not introduced, presumably because the House and Senate Armed Services Committees considered it too complex for de-tailed study with an already crowded "docket" and adjournment less than three months away. The proposal has the President's backing and is certain to be introduced again early in the 85th Congress. It increases from captain to major in the Army and Air Force and from lieutenant to lieutenant command-er in the Navy the peramanent grade which the average nurse or medical specialist could attain in a full career. The proposal would cost an average of $1 million a year for the first five years.

Interservice Transfers

Another proposal which failed to find a willing ear at the Capitol was the Pentagon plan authorizing Army, Navy, Air Force and Marine Corps officers to swap Services. The Pentagon sent the legislation to the House and Senate last February, but it was not introduced in

First Session Also OK'd Many Benefits

Here is what the first session of the 84th Congress did for the Armed Services:

- Increased basic pay by amounts ranging from six to 25 per cent.
- Boosted incentive and hazardous duty pay rates.
- Established a dislocation allowan to help pay excessive costs of family moves to new stations.
- Created a trailer allowance to give Service trailer-families assistance shipment of their household goods upon
- · Authorized construction of about 17,000 new family housing units.
- Assured bigger and better homes for Service families by approving increased ceilings on construction costs and floor
- · Boosted the dependent schooling al-
- lowance from $235 to $240. • Extended the Dependents Assistance
- Act for four years.

 Approved advance payments of pay and allowances for Servicemen for their return home when released from
- active duty.

 Granted Service personnel the right to designate a beneficiary to receive their back pay and allowances and other amounts due them at time of death.
- Authorized Reservists ordered to active duty because of a war or national emergency to draw active duty pay in
- lieu of their Reserve benefits.

 Extended the draft for four years and the doctor-draft for two to meet military manpower requirements.

New Faculty Members From Three Services

Col. Walter H. Becker, DC, USA, has been appointed III Corps Dental Surgeon at Ft. Hood, Tex. He replaces Col. Pearson W. Brown, DC, USA, who left recently to attend the Army War College.

Prior to this assignment, Colonel Becker was Post Dental Surgeon at Ft. Sheridan, Ill.

Congress Votes Millions In New Benefits For Servicemen And Families

From first page-

rently is completing work on the insurance program and the plan will go into effect in December. Service families will pay only a small portion of the hospitalization cost involved. Provision of the new medical care assures the Serviceman that the health and well-being of his family will be provided for while he man that the health and well-being of his family will be provided for while he is away from them. Like most of the other career incentive legislation, the program is expected to bolster the re-enlistment program and stem officer resignations. In addition to the insurance program, the new law provides uniform regulations for the medical care of active duty Service personnel (giving them the right to treatment in any Service) ice hospital regardless of their uniform), and establishes statutory authority for the treatment of retired members and their families in military facilities on a space available basis.

SURVIVOR BENEFITS

Along with the new medical care program, the $690 million Survivor Benefits Act shares top billing on the list of military laws enacted by the second session of the 84th Congress, All widows of men who die on active duty or from service-connected causes after they leave active duty will receive increased compensa-tion under this law beginning on 1 Jan. 1957. The amount of compensation for each widow will be $112 per month plus 12 per cent of the deceased Serviceman's active duty pay. The measure also brings all active duty members of the military services under contributory Social Se-curity beginning next year. This means that Service personnel will pay two per cent (2½ per cent under the revised Social Security law now pending enact-ment) on the first $4200 of their basic pay into the Social Security fund. At age 65, they will receive both their retired pay and Social Security pay. The meas-ure also increases the minimum sixmonths-death gratuity from $468 to $800 and reduces the maximum from $6857 to $3000. The $10,000 free life insurance program is terminated, and Federal Em-ployee Compensation Act benefits are discontinued for Reservists coming on active duty after passage of the bill. The new law also provides portal to portal coverage for all Reservists who are killed or die while travelling to or from active duty for training or inactive duty train-

MEDICAL CAREER INCENTIVES

All physicians and dentists in military All physicians and dentists in initiary uniform received substantial pay increases under the terms of the new Medical Career Incentives Act (Public Law 497) which was approved by the Congress and the President in April and became effective on 1 May. The $19 million program provided longevity pay increases averaging $50 per month and creases averaging $50 per month and ranging as high as $76 per month. The measure authorizes constructive credit of four years for dentists and five years of four years for dentists and five years for physicians who have completed internships. It also increases the special incentive pay for doctors from $100 per month to $150 per month after two years' service, $200 after six years' service, and $250 after 10 years. Some officers received an annual pay boost of more than $2700 under the terms of the Act. The measure was designed to halt the growing resignation rate among physicians ing resignation rate among physicians and dentists and to attract and retain more medical personnel in the Armed Services, thus providing adequate medical care for Servicemen and their

REGULAR OFFICER AUGMENTATION

The $2 Billion Capitol Story

 $\mathbf{T}_{ ext{HE}}$ Armed Forces will salute the two sessions of the 84th Congress for enactment of far-seeing personnel legislation, valued at about \$2 billion, which will do much to enhance National Security. Particularly noteworthy is the complete non-partisan attitude which marked the joint efforts of the Administration and Congress to make military service more attractive. This was an instance of dynamic Government team-

The Administration formulated a detailed program, which was pushed vigorously by Defense Secretary Charles E. Wilson, his principal civilian manpower aide, Assistant Defense Secretary Carter L. Burgess, and the Service Secretaries. A brilliant legislative liaison record was achieved by the Career Incentives Task Force, headed by RAdm. Elton W. Grenfell, USN, who is heading for a new assignment.

At the Capitol, the Armed Services Committees worked diligently through both sessions to process vital legislation that would make certain the Nation's security is not jeopardized by the presence of large numbers of "second-raters" in the Army, Navy, Air Force, Marine Corps and Coast Guard. With the assistance of their skilled professional staffs, Chairmen Russell and Vinson of the Senate and House Armed Services Committees, and the senior Republican members, Senator Saltonstall and Representative Short, were able to score brilliant successes, as reviewed in this issue.

On the basis of this record, the Services can look forward to a continued campaign next year to complete the job. This will mean passage of a new military pay increase and the enactment of the various bills which are described in an adjacent article. The prospects for the future are brightened in the glow of the record of the 84th Congress.

Frequently in past years, there has been much valid criticism of action on Capitol Hill which had adverse effects on the Armed Forces. No such charges can be made against the 84th Congress. It has done a magnificent job for all Servicemen and their families.

(Public Law 737), which gives all of the Services permanent authority to integrate officers into their Regular ranks.
The measure permanently extends present Navy and Marine Corps authority to ent Navy and Marine Corps authority to integrate officers through pay grade O-3. It gives both the Army and Air Force higher ceilings for Regular appointments and authorizes integration through the grade of colonel in the Army and lieutenant colonel in the Air Force. Under the new Act, the latter two Services der the new Act, the latter two Services der the new Act, the latter two Services will bring their Regular officer strength up to approximately 36 per cent in 1958, and to approximately 40 per cent in 1963. The President will have to decide after that date whether the Army and AF should continue to increase their Regular Services works to 50 per cent In 1958. should continue to increase their Regu-lar officer ranks to 50 per cent. In 1958, the Army will integrate an additional 7,000 officers, making a total of 35,640 Regular, and the AF will integrate an additional 25,000, making a total of 36,640 Regulars. Additional appointments will be made thereafter until 1963 to boost the total Regulary officer strength to 40 be made thereafter until 1963 to boost the total Regular officer strength to 40 per cent. The Army will make new appointments on a base age of 27, which may be increased by the officer's past active commissioned service and also up to two years of constructive credit. In the AF, some Regulars will receive additional promotion-list service based on the amount of prior commissioned service and up to two years of constructive service. The basis for new appointments ice and up to two years of constructive service. The basis for new appointments in the AF will be age 30, which can be increased by their commissioned service and up to two years of constructive service. Such service will be the basis for determining the promotion-list credit which is required for appointment to the various grades. The Act limits appointments in the AF to the grade of lieutenant colonel and below but initial augmentation will be through the grade of major only.

RETIREMENT IN HIGHEST GRADE

Permanent authority for military offi-cers and enlisted men to retire in the highest temporary rank which they have satisfactorily held was signed into law (Public Law 547) on 31 May. More than 900 retired officers, warrant officers and enlisted men received promotions on the retired lists under the Act, at a cost of $692,000. Thousands more now on active duty will benefit from the legislation in the future

RESERVE READJUSTMENT PAY

Reserve personnel involuntarily re-Reserve personnel involuntarily re-leased from active duty won rehabilita-tion pay under Public Law 676, which was signed on 9 July. The pay, which goes to all Reservists who have served goes to all reservists who have served at least five years of substantially con-tinuous active duty and are involuntarily released, is designed to help them re-adjust to civilian life. Payments are based on one-half of one month's basic pay in the grade in which the man is serving at the time of release for each year of active warrant, commissioned or enlisted service up to and including the 18th year. Approximately 4,335 Reservists will receive $11.8 million under the program during the current fiscal year

TAX CUT FOR RETIRED

The first important military law to be signed during the second session of the 84th Congress was Public Law 398, which reduces the taxes of all retired personnel. Regardless of age, retired Service-men and women are entitled, under the terms of the Act, to earn up to $1200 in outside income and take full tax credit outside income and take full tax credit on $1200 of their retired pay. The Law also provides that retired personnel who are 72 or older may earn any amount of outside income and draw their full retired pay. For those under 72, the new law provides that the tax credit is reduced dollar for dollar by any amount over $1200 which the taxpage earns. over $1200 which the taxpayer earns. The tax cut for the first year will amount to more than $11 million.

USCG RETIRED PAY

Retired commissioned officers of the Coast Guard won increased pay checks under Public Law 489, signed on 23 April. The Act provides that a USCG commissioned officer who was advanced one grade on retirement under the law of 12 January 1923, shall receive the re-tired pay of the grade in which he was retired. The cost of the pay boost was estimated at $116,000 through fiscal '56 and $15,000 annually thereafter.

NAVY PERSONNEL MEASURES

Five important measures affecting Navy personnel were approved by the second session and all but one have been signed into law. They include Public Law 581, which changes the Navy's system of assigning running mates to Lts(jg) in the staff corps by excluding USNA graduates and NROTC officers appointed ensigns in the Regular Navy from the fanning provisions of the Officer Personnel Act. When promoted to Lt(jg), these officers, under the terms of the new law, are assigned running mates in accordance with their position in order of merit upon graduation. Five important measures affecting

Navy Promotion Exams were changed by Public Law 584, which gives the Secretary of the Navy broad authority to tell Navy examining boards what professional qualifications to look for in fessional qualifications to look for in officers up for promotion.

WAVE Promotion laws were changed by Public Law 585, which permits the Navy to use unfilled WAVE commander billets to promote more Lt's to Lieutenant Commander. The new law also permits the Navy to retain on active duty until they complete 15 years' service a limited number of lieutenants who have completed 13 years' service and have completed 13 years' service and have not been selected for promotion. Regular and Reserve Navy Nurses in certain specialties were authorized to transfer to the Navy's Medical Service Corps under the terms of Public Law 606.

The fifth measure, now awaiting the President's signature, is HR 9892, which changes the procedures for physical examination of Navy and Marine Corps officers prior to promotion. The measure vests in the SecNav, instead of in a board of Naval surgeons, the responsibility for prescribing the method by bility for prescribing the method by which Navy and Marine Corps officers eligible for promotion shall physically qualify for such promotion.

"FORGIVENESS" LAWS

A number of new laws were enacted to permit Service personnel to keep pay which they received erroneously through a mistake by the Government.

The first of the group, Public Law 561, authorized "waiting pay" for approximately 4,000 Regular Army officers and 1,200 Regular AF officers. Payments already made in the amount of $2 million were validated by the legislation which also authorized new pewpents of approximately approximate the second programment. also authorized new payments of approximately $385,000. The payments in question were made between 31 December 1947 and June 1953 to Regular Army and AF officers for pay and allowance for the time from their appointment until their assignment to initial duty stations. stations.

The second, Public Law 526, validates payments of longevity pay made to Army and AF nurses on the basis of civilian service with the U. S. Public Health Service during the period 15 April 1947 to 1 Oct. 1949.

Another "forgiveness" bill, Public Law 620, validates $6 million in reenlistment bonuses erroneously paid to approxi-mately 20,000 enlisted personnel.

A fourth such measure, HR 7611, now at the White House awaiting the President's signature, establishes a date of rank for pay purposes for 2880 USNR officers who were recalled to active duty

Clinic Forum Set In "Old Ironsides"

In recognition of the vital role played by the company and battery commander in the chain of command, Maj. Gen. Robert L. Howze, USA, commanding general of the First Armored Division, has instituted a unique plan of instruction for these commanders at Ft. Polk.

Beginning in August, a clinic-forum for all company and battery commanders will be held each month by each major command of both Division and non-divisional units.

It is believed that by this forum, there will be a free exchange of ideas on important subjects, thus affording the less experienced company or battery commander the benefit of views of commanders with more extensive combat or administrative knowledge.

This initial session will be followed during the same month by a conference of all company and battery commanders at which solutions to the problems dis-at which solutions to the problems discussed during the major command conferences will be presented by a representative of each major command clinic. Subjects to be covered will be as proposed by a Commander's Clinic Committee, made up of one unit commander from each of the major commands. General Howze and his staff believe that the newly conceived program will raise the standard of training and administration at unit level, and will asist the unit commanders in arriving at sist the unit commanders in arriving at solutions to certain problems.

This was the Ordnance chief's first visit to Redstone since ABMA was activated there last February and has begun development of the intermediate-range 1,500 mile Jupiter missile.

Select Generals

Army selection boards will convene 1 Aug. to consider officers for permanent promotion to Brigadier General and temporary promotion to Major General on the Army Promotion Lists.

The zone of consideration for perma-nent promotion to Brigadier General will be composed of permanent Colonels, Army Promotion List, senior to and in-cluding Promotion List Number 832, Of-cluding Promotion List Number 332, Or-ficial Army Register, 1956.

Approximately 700 officers will be in the zone of consideration, of whom about 170 now serve as temporary Brigadier Generals or Major Generals.

All officers serving in the grade of Brigadier General will be considered for temporary promotion to Major General, AUS. Approximately 245 officers will be in this zone of consideration.

The names of officers selected by the boards will be announced as the officers are approved by the President for promotion tion, the Army said.

German Army "Creator" Departs For Ft. Knox

Col. William E. Chandler, USA, "creator of the new German Army," has been assigned to the Armored School, Ft. Knox, Ky., from Headquarters, U. S. Army, Europe.

Chief of the new German Training Assistance Group during the past year, Colonel Chandler has been responsible for the activation and training of 28 American training teams which are cur-rently providing assistance in the expan-sion of NATO's newest fighting force at German camps throughout Western Germany.

Consequently, German soldiers this year are taking their places beside American troops who for 10 years occupied their country and today are their guests. Brig. Gen. Hellmuth Reinhardt, Chief of Training for the new German Army, at the conclusion of a recent inspection trip, expressed his appreciation for the assistance being rendered by Colonel Chandler and his staff.

Colonel Chandler graduated from USMA in 1931 and was commissioned a Cavalry officer. Later he was transferred to Armor.

From 1931-1940 he served as troop offi-cer and squadron commander in various Cavalry regiments. As regimental S-3 with the 26th Cavalry (Philippine Scouts) in the Philippines at outbreak of war, he was taken prisoner on Bataan and spent the next three and one-half years in prisoner of war camps in the Philippines, Japan and Manchuria.

A graduate of the Command and Staff College, Armed Forces Staff College and the Army War College, Colonel Chandler has served with G-2, Department of the Army; Deputy G-2, Hq. Sixth Army; and in 1955 became Commanding Officer, Combat Command, Linz, US Forces,

In July, 1955, he was assigned as Chief of the German Training Assistance Group, G-3 Division, USAREUR.

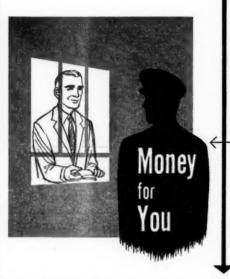

He will be accompanied to the Armored School by his wife, Betty, and one son, William. His other son, Clark Chandler, recently entered West Point.

NAVY'S OLDEST ACTIVE SHIP RETIRED

The USS Mississippi (EAG-128) oldest active ship in the Navy—she has been in continuous service since commissioning in 1917—made her last cruise on 18 July when she was transferred from the Norfolk Naval Base to the Portsmouth Naval Shipyard, Va.

The "Missy," a guided missile experimental ship with the Operational Development Force in the Atlantic since 1947, will be furned over to RAdm. Ingolf N. Kiland, USN, Commandant, Fifth Naval District on 31 July for inactivation and stripping. Her status will then be "in commission, in reserve."

During WWI, the battleship convoyed troops and supplies to Europe and joined with British battle squadrons to keep the German Navy bottled-up in own harbors. She participated in eight major campaigns, steaming nearly 170,000 miles. She fired approximately 10 million rounds of ammunition, shooting down nine enemy planes, sinking a Japanese battleship, and destroying enemy fortifications. She withstood repeated direct hits by Kamikaze planes.

Her 34th and last commanding officer was Capt. Edward A. Rucker, USN.

Navy Reveals Plans For Fiscal '57 Shipbuilding Program Highlighted By World's First Atomic Powered Surface Ship

Navy Secretary Charles S. Thomas has Navy Secretary Charles S. Thomas has assigned construction of the world's first atomic-powered surface ship to the Quincy, Mass., Yard of the Bethlehem Steel Co.

At the same time, he announced that the sixth in the series of Forrestal car-riers will be built by the New York Naval Shipyard.

The Quincy Yard which got the job of building the $87.5 million atomic powered guided missile cruiser, has been carrying out an active nuclear training program and is now working on design studies for the ship, the Secretary said. In addition Bethlehem's Quincy Yard was assigned the job of converting a light cruiser into a missile carrying ship.

At the same time, Secretary Thomas revealed that the Portsmouth and Mare Island Naval Shipyards would each con-struct a nuclear-powered submarine in the 1957 program.

Two guided missile frigates were assigned to the Philadelphia Naval Ship-

Navy Will Reduce

Training Programs

The Navy is getting set to shorten training periods at its basic air school and its aviation electronics school.

Men assigned to the basic air school will be trained for only five weeks instead of eight, as in the past.

Nine weeks will be cut from the present 28-week training program at the aviation electronic school. Students currently at the school receive instruction in the maintenance and operation of electronic equipment dealing with radio communication, radar and submarine decommunication, radar and submarine detection.

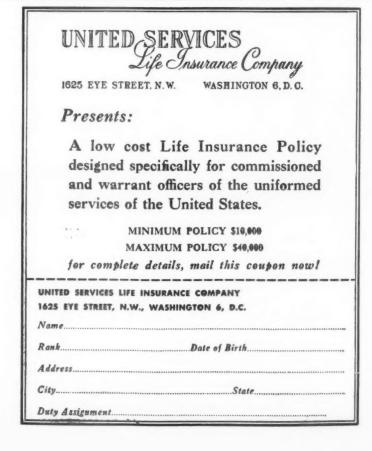

Under the shorter program they will spend 19 weeks learning just one of these fields.

By cutting the basic air school training period, the Navy said it will be able to "put the men on the job in the fleet sooner and for longer periods."

The reduction in the aviation electronic school curriculum will narrow the student's qualifications, a Navy spokesman said, "but the fleet will gain in increased productive time."

RECORD CLAIMED

An Air Force record for rocket marksmanship has been claimed by an aircrew from the 66th Fight-er Interceptor Squadron under the command of the 10th Air Division at the Alaskan Air Command Rocket Meet at Elmendorf AFB, Alaska.

The group chalked up a 5800 total out of a possible 6000 score to record the highest mark ever set in competitive firing in an F-89D all-weather fighter-interceptor 89D all-weather lighter-interceptor aircraft. Members of the crew were 1st Lt. Daniel A. Riley, USAF, pilot, 1st Lt. Max E. Ross, USAF, radar observer, and 1st Lt. Ken-neth A. Kirkpatrick, USAF, ground controller from the 719th AC&W Squadron.

Squadron.
Rules of the meet required the air-to-air attacks to be made while interceptor crews were "under the hood," relying strictly on radar. Lieutenant Riley and Lieutenant Ross scored 2000 points at 15,000 feet and 3800 points at 20,000 feet.

Finance Center Is Five Years Old, Gen. Gilchrist's Unit Pays $2.5 Billion

THE Air Force Finance Center at Denver, Colo., celebrates its fifth anniversary 31 July.

The Center, under command of Maj. Gen. John R. Gilchrist, USAF, Director of Finance for the Air Force, pays out two and a half billion dollars each year in salaries, allotment checks, claims, vouchers and savings bonds.

Every check, no matter how large or small, carries the signature of one man: Lt. Col. Charles W. Griffin, USAF, Chief of the Central Disbursing Division.

The Center, which is one of the largest business machine operations west of the Mississippi River, employs about 2000 persons. All but two per cent are Air Force personnel.

All allotments to banks, families and insurance companies are paid from the Center. More than 640,000 allotment checks valued at $70,000,000 are paid out each month.

One major problem is the necessity each month of changing addresses on 25,000 checks.

The Finance Center also audits and files every officer's and airman's pay record at least twice a year, a total of two million pay records an-nually. After filing, the records are used to answer the thousands of questions that arise concerning individual members' past pay.

Other duties require the audit and extraction of information from 400,000 vouchers received monthly from field finance officers covering all Air neid mance officers covering all Air Force payments. In addition, the Center also must settle 1500 claims each month that are too complex or involved to be negotiated in the field. Furthermore, it issued 10,000 savings bonds per month to Air Force personnel through the Payroll Savings sonnel through the Payroll Savings

New Aircraft Commanders

The following MATS officers were recently upgraded from First Pilots to Douglas C-118A Aircraft Commanders at McChord AFB, Wash.: Captains Gerald C. Baker, William E. Hartman, Ray M. Markman, Frank C. Sausa and Robert L.

Announcement of the upgrading was made by Lt. Col. George Mosconi, USAF, Commander of the 33d Air Transport Squadron.

As Aircraft Commanders, these officers assume full responsibility while piloting the four-motored C-118A's on their squad-ron's scheduled missions to Hawaii, Japan

COLONEL HANES WINS MacKAY TROPHY

The MacKay Trophy for the most meritorious flight of 1955 has been awarded to Col. Horace A. Hanes, USAF, Director of Flight Test and Development at ARDC's Flight Test Center, Edwards AFB, Calif. Colonel Hanes will receive the award at Headquarters USAF on 15 August.

He was cited for setting the world's speed record when he flew a F-100C at 822.135 miles per hour under rules established by the Federation Aeronautique Nationale. The flight was made in the first straight and level speed course at the Thompson Trophy Meet.

The MacKay Trophy was donated by the late founder of the MacKay Radio Corporation, and is awarded in most instances for speed, endurance, high altitude or long distance flights. For his speed record, Colonel Hanes also has been awarded the Thompson Trophy.

HORTLY before the conclusion of the hearings of your Subcommittee on July 3rd, you read a statement into the record which you said represented your personal views regarding my testimony and in which ou pointed out that there were inconsistencies between my sworn testi-mony and that of other witnesses. At that time I requested permission to reply to your statement.

"After a careful review of my testimony, and that of others, I must state that I disagree with the conclusions in your statement. I call your attention to the prepared statement which I made before the Committee on June 29th and my testimony which gave the facts as known to me and represent my views.

THERE ARE TWO MATTERS which I think it would be helpful to clarify for the benefit of the American people. The first relates to my intentions with respect to the additional funds appropriated by Congress for the Air Force. I stated at the hearing. and now repeat, I do not propose to im-pound the funds and I propose to carry out the intent of Congress, subject to the limiting factors proposed by the Congress itself and to the recommendations of the Secretary of the Air Force and to my own best judgment as to the security needs of the nation.

"The second point relates to the relative airpower of the United States vis-a-vis Russia. Depending upon how such a question is phrased, any one of a number of assumptions could be proven by the best intelligence esti-mates available. I merely wish to em-phasize my belief, based upon evaluation of the facts, that in our overall air strength we are ahead of the Russians today and we intend in the future to build and maintain total air strength capable of preserving the security of the United States, and as a visible de-terrent to wars of any kind.

"The military problems which have been investigated by your Committee are extremely complicated. In forming my judgment as to their solution, I have endeavored to study all available relevant data and to secure the advice and opinions of the most highly qualified experts our country can provide. In some cases my advisors have not been in complete agreement. My decisions and my recommendations to the President and the Congress have been thought out to the best of my ability and have always been based on what I considered to be in the best interest of national security.

"VOIL EXPRESS CONCERN that my sworn testimony was at variance with that of some of the officers who with that or some of the officers who testified before your Committee. While, in my opinion, my testimony and theirs is in general accord as to facts, it certainly does not surprise me that differences of opinion have developed. In fact, I consider it normal for discrept opinions to exist whenever divergent opinions to exist whenever individuals express their honest views on complicated and important matters and have different degrees of respon-

"When all of the testimony has been released, I trust that the true facts regarding our military strength, particularly as to airpower, will have been fully presented in proper perspective to the American people.

"Sincerely,

B-52 Will Make Debut In SAC "World Series"

The Strategic Air Command's annual bombing, navigation and reconnaissance competition will be held 24-29 Aug. at Lockbourne AFB, O., and Loring AFB, Me., highlighted by the contest debut of the B-52.

This summer's contest is the first in which B-47s will compete with RB-47s.

The Boeing B-47 and RB-47 Stratojet (bomber and reconnaissance) crews will compete out of Lockbourne. They will number 66. The 18 Convair B-36 Intercontinental crews and the four Boeing B-52 Stratofortress crews will be at

More than 3,000 officers and airmen will gather at the two sites with crews competing against crews and wings against wings.

Each SAC wing enters its two top crews in the competition. A crew is allowed only one aircraft, thus placing a premium on superior maintenance. The competition itself is composed of three missions. Each mission consists of three radar bomb runs and one night celestial navigation leg. Reconnaissance aircraft have additional aerial photography requirements on each mission.

ARDC To Probe "Jet Stream" With Bomber B-47 Will Be Employed For Lofty Research

The Air Research and Development Command has begun a new study of the "Jet Stream."

The new study is being conducted under the supervision of the Geophysics Directorate of ARDC's Air Force Cambridge Research Center.

During the past two years, scientists at AFCRC have charted the ever-changing course of the jet stream, a "river of air" that flows from west to east at various altitudes from 25,000 to 40,000 feet.

Since the jet stream frequently occurs over the southern United States during the winter months, past tests have been run utilizing aircraft based in Florida. For the new phase of the study, the base of operations has been moved to Wright-Patterson AFB, Ohio, as the stream frequently occurs over the northern United States and southern Canada in the summer months.

The jet stream will be checked, charted, and Probed by an instrumented B-47 bomber.

Crew of the aircraft will be Maj. Mont Smith, pilot from AFCRC, Maj. Morle J. Henderson, co-pilot from AFCRC, Capt. Charles Hawkins, Senior observer from AFCRC. When a fourth person is required on the flights, either Warrant Officers. cer James J. Lunsford, jr., or Lt. Robert E. Larsh of AFCRC will be used.

A Fine Start. The same initiative and intensity which Mr. Ralph J. Cordiner employed so brilliantly in developing nationally-famed personnel policies for the General Electric Company, of which he is president, are being manifested in the military pay raise study he is directing at the request of Defense Secretary Wilson. The Cordiner Committee intends to gather as many facts as possible which touch on the problem of procurement and retention of outstanding men for the Armed Forces. The final presentation, it can be expected confidently, will be well documented and forceful in its conclusions.

As was reported in last week's issue of THE JOURNAL, the Committee has been talking with such field commanders as Generals LeMay and Partridge of the Air Force and General Watlington of the Army. Other conferences will be held with field commanders in all the Services. From such sources, Mr. Cordiner and his associates are learning at first-hand about the impact of pay inequities on combat effectiveness.

In order that no fact-finding avenue will be unexplored, the Committee has arranged also for the Secretaries of the Army, Navy and Air Force to convene groups of senior NCO's to compile representative views of enlisted men towards factors which either encourage or discourage them to remain in uniform. The searching inquiry also will seek authoritative information from large numbers of Service wives-some of whom undoubtedly will testify on Capitol Hill next year.

It is still too early, of course, to forecast what final recommendations will be made by the Cordiner Committee, but it can be said that the study will be distinguished by findings which at once will be comprehensive and yet at the same time focused sharply on the heart of the matter, namely, the relation of pay and other career attractiveness factors to the needs of operational commands such as General LeMay's SAC, General Partridge's CONAD and General Watlington's 8th Infantry Division.

A Strong Reserve. The part played in the defense of our Nation by the National Guard is well set forth in the series of articles being concluded in this week's JOURNAL (Page 2). It is heartening to learn that both the Army and Air Force components of this vital segment of our National Defense Team have made such rapid progress during the ten years since its reorganization. This is particularly so since those ten years have been a period marked by ups and downs in our defense thinking and in appropriations.

National Guard units and personnel, both Army and Air Force, proved their great value in Korea where they added to the laurels these state units have earned since the birth of the Nation. That they did so was a great tribute to the time, effort and devotion of the men composing them, for after World War II, just as after every conflict in which they have gone into Federal Services, these units had to be rebuilt virtually from the ground up. This is so because virtually all the Federal government returns to the States after such a war is the unit designation and the authority to reconstitute it, because the personnel has been so changed, transferred and discharged that the original identity as state troops is lost.

With further reductions in full time active military personnel in the offing, the importance of the National Guard and the Reserve components grows even greater. Even today, as Maj. Gen. Edgar C. Erickson, National Guard Bureau Chief, pointed out in last week's Journal, National Guard anti-aircraft artillery units and air components under the Continental Defense Command

IN THE JOURNAL

10 Years Ago-President Truman has reversed an order of President James K. Polk which had required the Coast Guard to place enemy flags and colors captured in the course of war in the custody of the U.S. Naval Academy at Annapolis. In an Executive Order super-seding the 1849 decree, the President ruled that the Coast Guard may keep such wartime trophies "for preservation and display" at its own Academy in New London, Conn.

50 Years Ago—Admiral George Dewey, U.S.N., delivered a brief address at the annual reunion of the Oneida Veterans' Association at Richfield Springs, on 24 July, in the course of which he uttered a gentle protest against the tendency to measure American valor by the tasks of the Spanish War. "The battle of Manila Bay and the Spanish-American war as a whole," he remarked, "were propositions which, it is true, were sufficiently serious to satisfy the most discriminating, but let me tell you, comrades, they were mere child's play in comparison with the civil conflict of 1861-65."

90 Years Ago—The bill reviving the grade of General in the Army, and that creating that of Admiral in the Navy, has become law, having passed both houses of Congress and received the signature of the President. Lieutenant-General Grant was nominated by the President for promotion to the rank of General, and Vice-Admiral Farragut for promotion to the rank of Admiral. These nominations were a foregone conclu-

A "Progressive Trend"

Editor, THE JOURNAL:

The news of the adoption of the new out-of-line temporary promotion policy by Department of the Army is heartening to those young Regular officers apparently forgotten by repersonnel legislation. If ried out as described, it may add the necessary spark to retain many outstanding young men in the Army.

Though now in considerably better spirits at this unexpected turn of events, I should like to make a point concerning the large RA integration coming up. Granted that the plan is logical for a peacetime army the size of ours, and will offer a more secure career for many devoted officers. However, for those of us about to drop several thousand files behind officers who have not previously been able to obtain regular commissions and who in many cases are not senior to us in commissioned service. the plan is scarcely encouraging.

Most of us who received Regular Most of us who received Regular commissions between 1946 and the Korean War did so the "hard way" (through the Military Academy or competitive tour). Having sweated out a year's competitive tour in 1948, I know that most of the officers who won their RA second lieutenantcies at that time received no credit for the years of commissioned service they had previously had. But at that time at least we felt that we had earned something of "elite" status.

Now we are about to be put under men who for the most part could not qualify for an RA commission under the standards by which we won ours. They are not only receiving full credit for all previous commissioned service but are receiving constructive credit for age. Apparently we should have flunked our competitive tours and waited in some soft berth until now.

But there appears to be under the

But there appears to be under the out-of-line promotion plan a chance to rise above mediocrity. Whether we make it or not, we have at least had a fighting chance, and the estab-lishment of such a plan indicates a progressive trend in our G-1 policy. REGULAR CAPTAIN

Editor, THE JOURNAL:

The recent increase in pay and ank granted to physicians and dentists does an injustice to other officers, and places the medical and dental officer in an undeservedly favored position. To illustrate this, I shall compare the status of physicians and non-physicians, but the same arguments also apply to dental officers.

The increased pay and rank is not The increased pay and rank is not justified by the extra education of the physician. Lawyers, chaplains, psychologists, chemists, and many other officers require post-graduate education, but are not paid for it as the physicians are. For example, a poeter of Philosophy has four years Doctor of Philosophy has four years of graduate training, vs. five for the physician, yet a Ph.D. with 10 years of active service earns $587.28/mo. as a captain, or $634.08/mo. as a major, while the physician after 10 years' active service is guaranteed the rank of major and earns $932.08/mo., either 59% or 47% more than the Ph.D. though he has only one more year of graduate training.

The increase is not justified by the The increase is not justified by the supposedly greater experience of the physician. A non-physician would have to serve 22 years and attain the rank of colonel before his pay ($933.48/mo.) would equal that of a medical major with only 10 years of active duty.

The increase is not justified by the responsibility which a physician carries. A medical colonel with 26 years of active duty earns slightly more ($1,245.88/mo.) than a non-medical major general with equal length of service ($1,240.68/mo.), yet the major general carries far more responsi-

In summary, the physician and the dentist have been granted an increase in rank and pay which has been denied to many other officers with as much, or far more education, experience, and/or responsibility.

It has been argued that the in-ease was necessary to obtain career medical officers who would not remain in service without it. However, fairness requires that the pay of other officers of comparable qualifications be increased at the time and in equal amounts. Otherwise, the pay of officers will be determined by their willingness to serve their country and the disgraceful result will be that those most willing to serve will be paid the least, and those most reluctant to serve will be rewarded for their reluctance by being granted the highest salaries. Many competent officers have chosen military careers because the pay, though modest, was comparable for all branches and professions. Any abandonment of this system is apt to have most unfortunate consequences. While physicians and dentities may be presured officers in tists may be procured, officers in other branches may express their discontent by resigning.

To avoid such a situation, I propose that non-medical officers with education, training, experience, or responsibility equal to that of medical officers immediately be granted equal increases in pay and rank. Furthermore, since the purpose of the new law was to obtain career medical officers, I propose that drafted physicians and dentists, and residents be paid only the base pay drafted physicians and dentists, and residents be paid only the base pay and allowances of their rank until they have finished their obligated term of service. Finally, I propose that medical officers not be allowed to count their advanced training towards retirement have unless this towards retirement pay, unless this privilege is granted to all officers. It may not be widely known, but a medical officer who retires after only 25 years receives as much pay as a non-medical officer who retires after 30 years of service, under the terms of the recent legislation

The Chief Speaks On Organic Air

General Maxwell D. Taylor, USA, was asked during recent Sen-ate closed door testimony to dis-cuss the significance of organic airpower to the Army. His re-marks, released late this week,

In my judgment, the secret to success in battle on the ground remains unchanged over what it has been in past history, namely a proper combination of frepower and movement; of course, with good people.

The firepower is becoming available to the Army to a degree never dreamed of by soldiers in the past. That firepower is based upon the missile with the atomic warhead. We have a destructive capability which armies neve renvisaged in

We are, however, faced with what I would call a lag in mobility, because the battlefield upon which units can exist, if both sides have these atomic missiles, will be a very large, porous area.

IT WILL HAVE GREAT DEPTH, it will have great breadth, and the combat units will be separated by considerable distances; this dispersion being imposed by the great danger of concentration in the face of atomic weapons.

Consequently, movement would be made more difficult by this dispersion. Thus, it becomes very important for the Army to have improved organic mobility.

We look to this organic mobility in terms of light, thin-skinned, cross-country vehicles which will have some protection but will not

We look also to organic aviation belonging to the Army for this battlefield mobility. That is, to move men, equipment, and sup-plies between the various sectors of this broad and deep battlefield.

WE ARE ALSO AWARE of the tremendous importance of the discovery of targets. In other words, reconnaissance to our front and flanks will be very, very important in this period, because the target in this period, because the target discovered will be a target destroyed. So we feel we must have responsive air vehicles living with the Army commander, air vehicles capable of doing tasks of this sort. Now, this mission or role does not conflict, in my judgment, with what the Air Force is called upon to do. We are not seeking high-performance aircraft which would be associated with the Air Force. We are interested in the short field capability, which we must retain in order to have that air unit alongside the ground unit.

As a result, the Ground Aircraft Test As a result, the Ground Aircraft Test Section of Army Field Forces Board NT 1 was established. This small group of pilots and mechanics became the cornerstone of the Army's field testing for Army Aircraft. They clearly demonstrated the value of Army user-testing of organic aviation items. This early period of user-testing of Army aircraft was one of significant growth. Of salient importance was the introduction of the helicopter into Army Aviation. This is the machine which has subse-This is the machine which has subsequently worked its way into a number of very useful tasks which we today regard as indispensable for our up-todate, hard-hitting troops.

I was not able to keep up with the demands of the units in the field or with the new equipment being developed by the aviation industry. On 1 August 1955, the test division was redesignated Board Nr 6, CONARC, and action was taken to avend the facilities and was taken to expand the facilities and increase the number of personnel au-thorized. This board, better known as the Army Aviation Board, is located at Fort Rucker, Alabama, the home of the Army Aviation Center.

Army Aviation Center.

The primary mission of Board Nr 6, like that of the other CONARC Boards, is to conduct user-tests of equipment for the Army. However, there is one interesting difference. In the case of most tactical equipment developed for the Army, the Army has almost sole interest. Very few agencies outside of the Army are interested in buying artillery or armored vehicles. The Army tillery or armored vehicles. The Army Aviation Board is unique in that it is able to draw upon equipment developed able to draw upon equipment developed by the vast civilian aviation industry for possible application to Army use. Furthermore, much equipment devel-oped by the other services has a direct application to Army Aviation. In order to fulfill Army Aviation requirements, the board is responsible for reviewing such equipment.

THE UNIVERSALITY OF ARMY AVIATION is reflected in the personnel assigned to the board. Highly qualified pilots from every combat arm and technical service authorized Army Aviation are presently assigned. The majority of the officers have had combat experithe officers have had combat experience, both as aviators and as ground officers in their basic branch of service. In addition to the military personnel assigned to the board, qualified engineers and civilian pilots are assigned to provide technical assistance and continuity.

Most of the equipment which is identified with Army Aviation has been service tested by Board Nr 6 or its predecessor. An improved version of the famous L-5 was the first aircraft received in 1946. Later on, the L-13, L-15, L-16, L-17, and L-19 were all tested. In 1947, the Army's first helicopter, the YR-13, forerunner of the now standard H-13 series was put through its pages. H-13 series, was put through its paces. Since that time, many other helicopters have been tested as well as field lighting sets, refueling vehicles, cameras, camera mounts, aircraft radios and other associated items.

At present, the board is working on more than 40 projects which range in variety from the improvement of standard equipment presently in the hands of troops to radically new equipments. Two different types of portable GCA equipment are being tested. A Plan of Test is being written for the troop test of the AN/ARC-44 FM Tactical Radio for Army aircraft. THE HSL-1 (BELL) HELICOPTER is an example of equipment from another service which the board has recently evaluated. In consonance with the assigned mission, this test typifies the board's endeavor to keep abreast of new equipment developed by other agencies. This heliconter was desired. agencies. This helicopter was designed agencies. This helicopter was designed as an anti-submarine vehicle for the Navy and incorporates a rotor system which may have application to future Army Aviation requirements. As with projects of a similar nature, it affords board pilots an opportunity to gain ex-perience in circust other than these perience in aircraft other than those being procured for the Army. Thus, test officers gain a wealth of experience and perspective that enables them bet-ter to evaluate he Army's own equip-

Like the other services, the Army is very much interested in flying helicop-ters under instrument conditions. The board is actively engaged in this work and is making a thorough investigation and is making a thorough investigation of appropriate special instruments, electronic aids, and stabilization devices. This work is being closely coordinated with the Army Aviation School which is responsible for the development of the necessary procedures and special techniques required for and special techniques required for helicopter instrument flight.

Many items of new equipment are presently under preliminary study by the board prior to acceptance for for-mal test. Of unusual interest are the DeLackner Aerocycle, a one man flying device and the Sikorsky H-37, a giant helicopter of more than ten tons. It is anticipated that these two helicopers will be delivered to the board during the next few months.

THE BOARD IS FULLY COGNIZANT of its responsibility to Army Aviation. It is mandatory that the board keep ahead of the requirements expressed in the field, in order to reduce the developmental time for new equipment. Army Aviation units are no better than the equipment they are issued. The board is determined to make certain that the equipment that is issued will do the job. will do the job.

SCHOOL ASSISTANT

Col. John D. Edmunds, USA, Col. John D. Edmunds, USA, who completed the senior officers' course at The Army Aviation School at Ft. Rucker, Ala., in May, has been named Assistant Commandant of the School. He replaces Col. Jules E. Gonseth, jr., USA

Colonel Edmunds has been flying private aircraft since 1929, and has been connected with many phases of aviation such as development, transport and manufacturing. He owns his own aircraft.
When he came to The Army Aviation School last year as a student, he started on the advanced phase he started on the advanced phase of the senior officers course, including twin-engine and instrument flying. Prior to this he was assigned to the Continental Army Command, Ft. Monroe, Va. Before that, he was a member of the Department of Defense Joint Petroleum Committee in Washington, D. C.

memo

INCREASED STATURE is foreseen for the Continental Army Command at Ft. Monroe, Va., under General Willard G. Wyman, USA. One tipoff is the President's designation of Maj. Gen. Ridgley Gaither, USA, who has been Assistant CofS, Intelligence, to be Deputy CG at CONARC with three-star rank. In that post, he will direct the training of all Army Reserve Components, a job that will take on increasing importance with the buildup of Reserve Forces and expansion of the six-month active duty training program. IN THE PAST, there has been considerable agitation, largely in Reserve circles, for the appointment of a three-star Deputy on the Army General Staff to handle Reserve matters. General Gaither's assignment will quiet these demands. ASIDE FROM THE RESERVE TASK, don't be surprised if the Army strives during the next months to give greater public notice to its major field command in the United States. Many in the Army feel that though there is widespread understanding of the responsibilities of such commands as the Air Force's SAC, TAC, and ADC, much less is known about the Army's commands, including CONARC and the Antiaircraft Artillery Command, headed by Lt. Gen. Stanley R. Mickelsen, USA.

MAMMOTH VACUUM CLEANERS are being developed for the Air Force. They will be capable of sweeping a million square feet of runway surface per hour at a speed of 20 miles. The new equipment is designed to help reduce damage to jet engines from foreign objects on airfield pavement surfaces.

PENTAGON LEGISLATIVE BUNGLING is tabbed by Capitol Hill experts as the reason why the substandard quarters bill—though passed by both the Senate and House—died quietly during the final days of the session. The $15 million measure, sought by the Administration, appeared on the way to certain enactment after its approval by the House Armed Services Committee and then the House. BUT AT THIS POINT an end-run was tried. It misfired to the disadvantage of more than 30,000 families. In the Senate Armed Services Committee, the Defense Department, represented by Assistant Navy Secretary Pratt, succeeded in winning approval for features of the legislation that had been strongly opposed in the House. THE SENATE ACTION turned out to be a Pyrrhic victory. Chairman Vinson of the House Committee and his colleagues, upset over the maneuvering, declined to go to conference on the two versions of the bill. The result will be that thousands of Service families will continue to pay exorbitant rentals for substandard facilities. THE REASON that Chairman Vinson and his Committee members held fast to the two-year limit was their contention that the Pentagon should take vigorous action to see that NO military men and their families are forced to live in quarters that fail to meet decent American standards.

WITH ELECTION INTEREST INCREASING, Pentagon security officers will be checking public statements, speeches, etc., particularly closely for other factors than clear-cut security matters. Material will be scrutinzed for "overriding national interest, such as a subject with a potentially conroversial political connotation," according to an advisory sent out by the Air Force.

THE FAVORABLE CONGRESSIONAL ATTITUDE toward legislation that enhances military service was demonstrated anew with passage of the Regular Officer Augmentation Bill. In past years, after great struggle, the Army finally won consideration—though not ultimate approval—for a plan which added all of 4000 Regular officers. THE NEW LEGISLATION authorizes the Army to go as high as 49,500 Regulars (present ceiling, 30,600). The Air Force in the new bill is permitted a limit of 69,425 Regular officers (present AF restriction, 27,500). EARLIER IN THE SESSION, Congress showed where it stands, with enactment of the Family Medical Care Bill. In previous years, efforts to expand care for dependents failed to get out of Committee.

STEPPED-UP INTEREST for Regular appointments among thousands of Reserve officers on active duty in the Army and Air Force can be anticipated in the wake of stories concerning prospective strength reductions. Enactment of the Survivor Benefits Bill also will have an effect. It eliminates the discriminatory situation in which a Reservist's widow now can receive six times as much ($525) as the widow of a Regular officer of identical rank and service ($87.). THAT INCREDIBLE SITUATION prompted a number of Reservists to forego opportunities for Regular appointments during recent years when they could reasonably count on remaining in active service. WITH THAT ASSURANCE LESSENED, many who were on the fence now will strive for Regular status.

as a classification for documents which are essentially unclassified. During hearings into Government secrecy by the House Government Information Subcommittee, Navy Secretary Thomas admitted that the Navy has been using the designation—without authority—as a means of guarding "against the untimely early release of tentative plans affecting the organization or movement of Naval activities." He now plans to abandon the term in favor of the official Defense Department designation "For Official Use Only." The latter term, however, may also come under fire in the Subcommittee's report.

MORE AND MORE STATES are going to find it pays off to set up special facilities to aid retired military personnel who are seeking places to live and to work. With the Services moving towards increased 20-year retirements for non-Regulars, large numbers of relatively young officers and NCO's with specialized skills will become available for employment in varied fields—for example, school teaching and engineering—in the next several years. An indication of what the States will be doing is found in a report from Vermont, published on Page 20.

MISSILE PROGRESS PROBLEMS commanded a good part of General Taylor's testimony before the Symington Subcommittee. The Army CofS, under questioning, told the Senators that he feels a "decision is necessary" with regard to the use of the Army's Nike missile by soldiers or the use of the Navy's Talos missile by the Air Force in providing antiaircraft defense for the United States. That, of course, has been a widely known controversy. LESS OBVIOUS was General Taylor's comment that the Army, developing its family of missiles, in due time will find it necessary to pare down "because of overlap."

NORTH AMERICAN HAS BUILT MORE AIRPLANES

SUPERSONIC SHADOW

Tomorrow's aircraft are casting their shadows before them. Details of their performance are incredible. Yet their most dramatic asset is still the fact that a human pilot will be at the controls. For there is no mechanism that possesses man's power of judgment . . . his ability to capitalize on opportunity. At North American - home of the U. S. Air Force F-100 SUPER SABRE, the free world's first operational supersonic fighter, and the Navy FJ-4 FURY—this is the order of the day: to make tomorrow's planes habitable by man, while they operate at speeds and altitudes which otherwise would be beyond his physical limitations.

ton, who was promoted to flag rank on 1 July, is ordered to the Commandant of the Fifth Naval District for further assignment by Chief of Naval Personnel.

SPACE SILHOUETTE

The shape of things to come in long range missiles looms ever clearer at North American. More than ten years ago, North American engineers started work in an almost unexplored technological world. This was the birth of the U.S. Air Force's SM-64 NAVAHO Intercontinental Missile. Today -though security restrictions prohibit any details - we can tell you that the automatically controlled NAVAHO is playing a vital role in the Air Force's program of missile development, so essential to our nation's security.

Army Civilian Advisors In Hawaii See 25th Infantry Division In Field Action

MORE than 40 members of the Army Advisory Committee of Hawaii and news media representatives in Hawaii were recent observers of the explosive might of the 25th Infantry Division's field artillery. Guests of U.S. Army, Pacific, at regularly scheduled firing practice on the Island of Hawaii's Pohakuloa Training Area, they were impressed with the preciseness with which the Army's field artillery delivered either single or multiple rounds on targets. The Pohakuloa Training Area, a 100,- field artillerymen.

The assembled observers, informally clad, were guests of Maj. Gen. Herbert B. Powell, USA, the Acting Pacific Army Commander, at the sprawling training area which is located some 200 air miles from the Island of Oahu where the 25th Infantry Division and the U.S. Army, Pacific, headquarters are located.

The visit to watch the artillery practice shoot was made in conjunction with the quarterly meeting of the Army Advisory Committee of Hawaii.

THE FOUR BATTALIONS of the division's field artillery, three battalions of 105-millimeter and one battalion of 155-millimeter guns—48 guns in all—took part in the training test.

General Powell and Maj. Gen. Edwin J. Messinger, USA, 25th Infantry Division Commander, accompanied the group of observers from Oahu to Ha-waii in an Air Force C-54 aircraft. They waii in an Air Force C-34 aircraft. They were met and welcomed to the Pohakuloa camp by Brig. Gen. Edwin A. Walker, USA, division artillery commander. Maj. C. H. Hoffman, USA, operations officer for the division artillery, described the action and "called the shots" during the practice demonstration.

Heading the list of civilian observers was Frank E. Midkiff, Civilian Aide to the Secretary of the Army for Hawaii. Mr. Midkiff, who helped to organize the Army Advisory Committee of Hawaii and was its first chairman, turned over the gavel of chairman to Morley L. Theaker, prominent Honolulu businessman, who presided at the committee meeting which followed the shooting practice. Mr. Theaker's term as committee chairman is for one year.

MEMBERS OF THE COMMITTEE who watched the practice artillery shoot and saw the division artillery hit its targets with impressive accuracy and speed, came away convinced that the "artillery is here to stay."

General Powell, in a brief talk, told members of the Army Advisory Com-mittee that the Pohakuloa Training area, called the "Saddle" because it lies between the mountains of Mauna Kea on the north and Mauna Loa on the on the north and Mauna Loa on the south, is more than a practice ground for men learning the science and discipline of war; it is an economic asset to the Territory of Hawaii. He called the area one of the best training areas in the world for troops, with an excellent climate that permits training and maneuvers to be conducted every day in the year if necessary.

The field artillery battalions firing

The field artillery battalions firing at Pohakuloa are bringing to a close the second year that the infantry, ar-tillery, tank and engineer units of the tillery, tank and engineer units of the 25th Infantry Division, with their supporting troops, have used the Pohakuloa Training area for its field training

USE OF THE POHAKULOA TRAIN-ING GROUNDS is unique in that it involves an inter-island air-sea lift of several thousand men and tons of equipment, tanks, heavy artillery pieces, and trucks and jeeps over 200 miles of Pacific Ocean. The great majority of the men are transported from the Island of Oahu to the Island of Hawaii in one of the largest commercial training airlifts in Army history, a battalion of in-fantry each week for nine weeks, fol-lowed by the division's four artillery battalions and other supporting troops. battalions and other supporting troops. The flights over water take about 72 minutes each way. About half of the troops travel by commercial aircraft, the remainder, and the bulk of the heavy equipment, travel by Navy landing craft. Nearly all of the commercial sufficiency are made at night to avoid in airflights are made at night to avoid in-terference with the regular schedules terference with

The infantry battalions of the division conducted their field tests from 15 April through 4 June. The remainder of June the area was used by the Ha-waii National Guard. The division's artillery battalions took over the area in July. When the artillery moves out, units of the 4th Marine Regiment, based at Kaneohe, Oahu, will move in and conduct their field training exercises.

Support for the 25th Division units is provided by a 263-man base camp group. The camp consists of more than 200 tents and a sprinkling of quonsets connected with a field telephone network. A radio-teletype and radio-tele-phone system provides communication between the base camp and Schofield Barracks, home station for the 25th Infantry Division.

Brig. Gen. John H. McGee, USA, assistant division commander of the 25th Infantry Division, was the base camp commander during the period of the infantry training exercises. He turned over the camp command to General Walker for the artillery training.

The Pohakuloa Training Area, lying as it does between the twin 13,000-foot peaks of Mauna Loa and Mauna Kea, two of the largest volcanoes in the world, contains many old lava flows and deep ravines which make a most rugged territory for the infantryman, the artilleryman, and the engineer. Tough Army combat boots, designed for punishment, are cut to shreds after three or four days' traveling over the lava terrain.

THERE'S THE TARGET-Brig. Gen. Edwin A. Walker, USA, 25th Infantry Division artillery commander, points out target during recent exercise at the Pohakuloa Training Area, Island of Hawaii. Looking on are Maj. Gen. Herbert B. Powell, USA, Acting Pacific Army Commander; Maj. Gen. Edwin J. Messinger, USA, 25th Infantry Division Commander; Morley L. Vermont Senator Calls Attention To Job Opportunities For Retired

RETIRED officers who have qualifica-tions in the field of Civil Engi-neering and who wish to continue em-ployment will be welcomed in Vermont where many permanent positions are open in the State Highway Department. There is also a demand for teachers in the Vermont School De-partment, both on the elementary and secondary levels, particularly for those who can teach in mathematics and the

These facts are being called to attention of retired personnel of the armed services and those about to re-tire, by Vermont's junior Senator Ralph E. Flanders.

A member of the Senate Armed Services Committee, Senator Flanders said he "is keenly interested in the program being developed by the Services to assist their retired personnel in continuing an active and successful career, when desired, after ending their military duty." Through his Vermont office, located in the State Capital at Montpelier, he has been exploring possibilities both for residence and for employment in the Green Mountain State.

Inquiry at the State Highway De-partment reveals that some 75 civil en-gineering jobs are open. Commissioner of Highways William Poeter has assured Senator Flanders his department will lend every assistance to re-tired officers who apply for these va-

Many retired officers already residing in Vermont are cooperating with Senator Flanders. Lt. Col. Robert W. Chutter of Pittsford, who retired to Vermont several years ago, wrote the Senator's Vermont office regarding the State as a place to live, as follows:

"It is a region of unsurpassed natural beauty, broad selectivity of recreational activities, modest living costs, and a general population which demonstrates those virtues of industry, integrity, and individuality. The environment, physically and socially, is most favorable for family living."

Members of Senator Flanders' office staff are available to all retired officers who wish to be briefed on residential and employment opportunities in Ver-mont. Individual treatment will be given each officer and they will be put in contact with the proper authorities where they may obtain whatever infor-mation required, whether it is to buy a home or find a job.

Service personnel who may be interested can write direct to Henry P. Balivet, Jr., exec.-Sec'y., Vermont Of-fice of Senator Flanders, 92 State St., Montpelier, Vt., for either information or personal appointments.

Shift Of FEAF To Hawaii Seen Likely In Wake Of Top Command Changes

The Defense Department's announcement last week of major changes in command headquarters is expected to be followed by disclosure of plans for shift-ing Far East Air Forces, headed by Genal Laurence S. Kuter, USAF, from Japan to Hawaii.

This would be linked to the decision to consolidate under Admiral Felix B. Stump, USN, C-in-C Pacific, the areas and Stump, USN, C-in-C-Pacific, the areas and responsibilities of the C-in-C Pacific and the C-in-C Far East Command, who is General Lyman L. Lemnitzer, USA,
This will take place on 1 July 1957. The Pentagon said the action "will simplify the command and organization of U. S.

forces in the Pacific-Far East area.

United Nations Command will be retained as a separate major command because of the unresolved politico-mili-tary situation which has resulted only in a suspension of hostilities and a state of truce. The headquarters of the UN Command, presently in Tokyo, will be relocated in Korea, The U. S. support of UN forces in Korea will become the responsibility of the Commander-in-Chief, Pacific.

To carry out the functions and opera-tions of U. S. forces in Japan an appro-priate U. S. headquarters will remain in Tokyo functioning under the command of the Commander-in-Chief, Pacific, in accordance with the Security Treaty and in cooperation with Japan's Self Defense

Other actions stemming from this basic decision will be worked out carefully and deliberately during the period prior to the command change. No major changes in the deployment of U. S. armed forces in this area are contemplated as a result of this action, the Defense Department said.

Gen. Taylor Tells Views On Pay

From first page-

The Senator asked: "What in your judgment is the method by which it is going to be possible for us to retain in the Armed Services sufficient technical personnel to handle the constantly increasing demand for that kind of personnel?" sonnel?

Given this opportunity to lay the Army's viewpoint on pay before the influential group of legislators, General Taylor re-

Well, I would say, Senator Duff, that first adequate compensation is a factor, and I would ask you to extend your concern for technically trained people to include those of the leader-type, as dis-tinguished from the man who under-stands and uses gadgets, because the leader-type makes armies, and I would say is the backbone of all the Services.

"That is the kind of fellow we need in the professional officer and noncommissioned officer corps; whether he is a technician or combat leader, he is an indispensable asset to the Army and we must make every effort to retain him."

'Adequate compensation is certainly a factor, and I feel we owe it to our people to pay them adequately.

"On the other hand, morale and pride of service are really the source of the internal strength of our services, so that not only must we pay our soldiers but our whole country must respect the mis-sion of the Armed Service and show it understanding so that every man in uniform feels he is doing something that his country respects and of which he can be

Pointing up the need to attract and hold the highest type men for military service, General Taylor told the Committee of the Army's slogan: "We must put the best heads of America into the Army hats of tomorrow."

The release of General Taylor's testimony coincided with completion of plans for convening specially selected groups of senior NCO's in all the Services to draw up recommendations for the Cor-diner Committee. The Advisory Committee on Profession-

The Advisory Committee on Professional and Technical Compensation, headed by President Ralph J. Cordiner of the General Electric Company, called upon the Service Secretaries to assemble representative NCO's who will tell what factors influence enlisted personnel to remain in service and what factors have an adverse service and what factors have an adverse reaction.

It is expected that a number of NCO wives will participate in the discussions that will precede the drafting of conclusions for the Cordiner Committee. The Army said that about 18 NCO's will begin meetings at the Ft. Belvoir, Va., Engineer Center on 28 July. They will represent major commands in the United States and overseas.

Navy JAG Hearing Brings SecNav Charge That Sea Duty Prejudices Selection Bds

The controversy over the President's appointment of a new Navy JAG (first revealed in The Journal) culminated in a special hearing by the Stennis Senate Armed Services Subcommitte.

Navy Secretary Charles S. Thomas defended his recommendation that the post go to Capt. Chester C. Ward, USN, in-stead of the Acting JAG, RAdm. William R. Scheeley, USN.

Mr. Thomas praised Admiral Scheeley as an excellent officer who "has a won-derful career ahead of him," but the Secretary said he had carefully combed the files of both officers and had decided that the appointment should go to Captain

Senator Stennis (D., Miss.) inquired why a Navy selection board had by-passed Captain Ward and selected Admiral Scheeley to receive the first flag braid ever awarded a Navy law specialist.

Mr. Thomas said he thought the board had perhaps leaned a little too heavily on Admiral Scheeley's sea experience and war record. He admitted he could not be certain of this because the deliberations of such boards are secret.

The selection board, headed by Admiral Jerauld Wright, had been cautioned to base its choice of special duty officers upon the "comparative fitness" of officers "within such categories, for the duties prescribed for them by law."

Mr. Thomas said nevertheless he feels

Mr. Thomas said, nevertheless, he feels selection boards "generally will give preference to a man with sea duty."

Senator Stennis told the Secretary there was a natural inference that the post should have gone to Admiral Scheels with the Acting IAC had just been ey since the Acting JAG had just been selected for flag rank shortly before the Navy's top legal billet was vacated.

The Senator noted that Captain Ward's appointment calls for an increase in the ceiling which the committee has imposed on the number of flag officers in the Navy.

The Subcommittee was expected to reach a decision on the nomination as THE JOURNAL went to press.

Household Goods Go Door-To-Door Between United States And West Germany

President Louis Schramm of Allied Van Lines, Inc., has announced approval by the Army's Chief of Transportation of door-to-door shipment of household goods between the U. S. and West Germany. AVL, the nation's largest mover, already provides similar transportation to Alaska Hawaii and Puerto Rico.

AVL's 700 agents, the Military Sea Transport Service, port handling agents and designated local movers in the Republic of Germany, all will cooperate to make door-to-door moves for military per-sonnel as speedy and painless as possible, the company said.

The AVL agent at the point of origin will do the preliminary packing, make a complete inventory, identify each piece by means of numbered tags, and trans-port the goods in an Allied over-the-road van to a port handling agent at New York, Norfolk or New Orleans. The agent at the port city will transfer the ship-ment to one or more steel Army Conex containers for transportation to the MSTS dock by flathed truck dock by flatbed truck.

In Germany, Allied's port handling agent at Bremerhaven will unpack the containers, and load the contents into modern trailers for ultimate delivery to the serviceman's German residence.

The same procedure is followed in shipping household goods back to the United States when the serviceman's tour of duty in Germany is completed.

In either case, military personnel will be spared the inconvenience usually entailed in overseas shipment. Once he calls the Allied agent, the shipper need give no further thought to his goods until they are delivered to his new address. All ship-ments are insured, Responsibility for any loss or damage in transit is easily established because only one bill of lading is used.

Before instituting the new service, AVL took full precautions that shipments would be expedited properly, Mr. Schramm said. AVL executives spent several weeks in Germany, working closely with Army transportation officials and investigating the follities of healers. vestigating the facilities of haulers. The port handling agents and the movers se-

People of USAFE Will Buy Organ

WIESBADEN, GERMANY. Personnel throughout the U. S. Air Forces in Europe will be given an opportunity to join in a Third Air Force-sponsored appeal to raise funds for a $75,000 organ in London's famous war-blitzed St. Clement Danes Church being rebuilt as an Air Force shrine.

Force shrine.

St. Clement Danes, believed built in the time of Alfred the Great (871-901), was one of London's best loved and worst damaged places of worship. It had been handed over to the Royal Air Force by the Diocese of London to become the headquarters church of the RAF and a memorial shrine to Air Force dead.

The RAF Association is raising 125,000 pounds ($350,000) in voluntary contributions to complete restoration of the church itself. The organ will be USAF's contribution to the project that will eventually see the church returned to its pre-war glory.

When restored this shrine will contain 10 illuminated volumes with the names of British, Commonwealth, and U. K.-based American Air Force personnel who died in the defense of freedom.

It is planned that alongside the Amer lean-donated organ will be a roll of honor listing the U. S. Air Force officers and airmen who died while based in Britain during World War II.

during World War II,

The proposal that USAF personnel be permitted to help in restoring St. Clement Danes, by contribution of the organ, was made some months ago by Maj. Gen. Roscoe C. Wilson, USAF, Third Air Force commander. His offer was accepted with thanks by the British Secretary of State for Air, Nigel Birch.

Salvaged Cockpit Flies High For ARDC

A cockpit salvaged from a crashed F-86 Sabre has been installed in an altitude chamber at the Air Research and Development Command's Wright Air Development Center, Ohio, to simulate flights up to 150,000 feet.

The cockpit, modified to fit into the chamber, permits studies of pilot efficiency under extreme high altitude flight conditions as well as pilot reaction to sudden decompression.

The cockpit can be pressurized up to five pounds per square inch greater than the air pressure in the chamber, and can then suddenly be equalized with the chamber pressure. This simulates loss of cabin pressure by explosive or rapid decompression.

Because of the hazardous nature of the tests, the cockpit is fitted with a series of electrical and manual safety locks. Seventy-five electrical outlets per-mit extensive instrumentation, and the entire cockpit is airtight.

84th Congress Raises Military Budget; Services At Work On FY '58 Programs

Increased concern by the 84th Congress Increased concern by the 84th Congress for the Armed Forces was shown this year, not only in the many personnel measures designed to enhance military careers, but also by approval of a bigger overall budget for the Services than requested by the Administration.

How the additional funds-all of which went to the Air Force; the Army, Navy and Marine Corps got less than the President and the Pentagon had asked-will be spent has not yet been disclosed. Sec-retary Wilson has stated, however, that he does not intend to "impound" the he does not intend to "impound" the added millions.

In approving the FY '57 Defense budget the Congress also boosted the dependent schooling allowance from $240 to $245 per month. The allowance had been raised from $235 to $240 during the first resider. first session.

Here is the way the budget funds were distributed among the Services and where they will go.

THE ARMY received $7.5 billion for force of 1,045,300 men organized into 19 divisions, 10 regimental combat teams, 140 AA battalions and other combat support units. This is an increase of one division, nine AA battalions and 5,300 men over last year's budget. The biggest slice of the new funds-$3.5 million-goes the Army's payroll; $2.9 billion is slated for maintenance and operations and $410 million for research and devel-

THE NAVY AND MARINE CORPS received approximately $10 billion for a force of 672,000 in the Navy and 205,735

in the Marine Corps. This represents an increase of 16,600 in the Navy (although fleet manning levels are to be maintained at the same level as last year), and an increase of 4,735 in the Marine Corps. The Navy will add 20 ships to the active fleet for a new total of 1005 and active fleet for a new total of 1005 and will begin a new $1.4 billion shipbuilding program which includes construction of 23 new ships and conversion of 23 older vessels. Naval aviation will keep approximately 10,000 planes in daily operational status—about the same as last erational status—about the same as last year—and the Marine Corps will con-tinue to man three air wings and three divisions, with supporting elements. The biggest single slice of Navy and Marine Corps funds also will go into their pay-rolls—$2.4 billion for the Navy and $647 million for the Marine Corps. Research and development activities will take $492 million of the total and $1.7 billion will go into the procurement of aircraft and related equipment.

THE AIR FORCE was awarded $16.4 billion for a force of 936,000 plus. This is an increase of 20,000. The funds are expected to permit the AF to complete the equipping and manning of its 137-wing corce by 30 June 1957. The active aircraft inventory will grow during the same period from 22,000 to 24,000, not counting the additional B-52's provided for by the last-minute addition of $800 million for that purpose. The total for aircraft and related procurement is $6.8 billion. Air Force personnel will re-ceive $3.7 billion of the total and a like amount will go into operation and main-

The twin jet bomber has low speed landing characteristics and a Hytrol non-skid braking system that will normally stop it in a short distance. However, addition of the deceleration chute, which measures 24 feet in diameter, will assure safe landings on wet runways, during instrument landings under GCA Condi-tions, or emergency landings made with high gross weight. It is designed for normal touchdown speed of 150 knots and an emergency speed of 170 knots. The chute is housed in the tail section compartment of the airplane. It is deployed after touchdown, and is actuated by a single electrical switch controlled by the pilot. However, the control system has certain safety measures which guard against premature or accidental release and to permit jettisoning of the chute in emergency. The A3D, a long-range, high-altitude bomber, is capable of taking off an air-craft carrier in one ocean, completing a mid-continent bombing mission, and landing on a carrier in another ocean.

Powered by two Pratt and Whitney rated in the 600-700 mph class, is faster than many jet fighters, and can operate at altitudes in excess of 40,000 feet.

Billions At Stake In Public Works

The $2.1 billion Military Public Works Bill was back in the running this week, minus funds for Air Force use of the Navy's Talos antiaircraft guided missile and containing new rules on the construction of family housing.

President Eisenhower vetoed an earlier version of the bill which had required the Services to come into agreement with the Armed Services Committees be-fore spending money on Talos facilities for the Air Force and before proceeding with the construction of family housing

The President said these requirements invaded his Constitutional powers.

The House Armed Services Committee immediately approved a new bill from which the controversial language was eliminated. This won quick House approval.

The Senate Armed Services Committhe gave its approval to the new House measure this week after making two changes. The Senate group eliminated $18 million for the Talos projects and wrote in a new section requiring the Defense Department to file reports with the Armed Services Committees 180 days before awarding any housing contracts.

The measure was due to be approved by the Senate as THE JOURNAL went to press and is expected to be accepted by the House.

The big construction measure authorizes an $80 million family housing program in the U. S. and a $150 million program overseas in addition to new base construction throughout the Armed House and Senate conferees meanwhile approved a final compromise money bill—$1,691,341,875—for the military construction program and the House agreed to the measure. The Senate was expected to follow suit and both the authorization and appropriations bills were due at the White House by the weekend for Presidential action.

Sec'y Brucker Urges Housing Action, Concedes He Is "Crank" On Subject

THE Army needs more money for family housing and Secretary Wilber M. Brucker intends to fight for it in fiscal year 1958.

"I am very much of a crank on the subject of housing," he has declared, "and I am quite insistent that in our next budget we should have more in that field."

This forthright assertion was made in secret testimony before the Sy-mington Subcommittee on Air Power and was released to the public late this week.

Mr. Brucker revealed that the Army has asked the Defense Department for $10.2 billion in budget obligations for the fiscal year beginning 1 July 1956. The President recommended $9.4 billion.

The Secretary indicated that a considerable amount of money that was cut represented housing requests that the Defense Department said should be deferred.

The Secretary was asked by the Committee Counsel: "Would the effect of deferring the housing items that you mentioned in fiscal 1957 mean that they would be abandoned, or did you hope to be able to do that work in some subsequent year?"

Replied Secretary Brucker: "Not at all. I want that picked up in this next year's budget.'

year's budget."

The Secretary explained that Defense Department officials felt that Capehart Housing would take care of the problem, Mr. Brucker said he is the problem, Mr. Brucker said he is in doubt about that forecast.

"I feel that while Capehart Housing is a good thing," Mr. Brucker related, "I want to see Army personnel get all the help they can, and I feel this ought to be pressed next year."

The Secretary was asked to what extent housing affects Army morale.
His answer: "I feel it is one of the His answer: "I feel it is one of the morale builders that is a sine qua non. I view it as a matter that I am perhaps more interested in than others might be, but I view it as something of importance."

either House. This proposal also can be expected to be sent back to the Hill early next year. The Pentagon believes that interservice transfer (now restricted to the Medical Services) would safeguard the opportunities for individuals and promore effective utilization of manpower. At present one Service may find itself with a surplus of officers with particular qualifications while another Service has a shortage.

UCMJ Revision

The Brooks House Armed Services Subcommittee held extensive hearings on the bill to revise the Uniform Code of Military Justice but was forced—because of the pressure of other legislation — to put the bill aside until next year. If re-submitted early in January by the Pent-agon, as it is expected to be, the meas-ure is certain to be reported to the full Committee early in the session. Congressional sources express doubt, however, that the Defense Department ever, that the Defense Department measure will come out of Committee in the same form in which it was submitted. Many of the proposed changes in the Code are controversial and will continue Code are controversial an to face strong opposition.

Legal Training

Reinstitution of post-graduate instruction in law for Army, Navy, Air Force and Marine Corps officers was killed by the House this week. The proposal had been sanctioned by the House Armed Services Committee but was defeated on the House floor. It was designed to remove a restrictive rider attached to the annual military, appropriations are ferrographical and the services of the services of the services are services and the services are services are services and the services are services are services are services and the services are move a restrictive rider attached to the annual military appropriations acts for the past four years which prohibits all four Services from sending officers to civilian law schools. The Pentagon will no doubt continue next year to plead for removal of the restriction.

Other Measures Didn't Make It

Here are a number of other measures which were approved by either the House or Senate but failed to clear the Congress before adjournment:

RESERVE MIDSHIPMEN authorizes appointment of Reserve mid-shipmen in the U. S. Navy. Passed Sen-ate only.

OLEO FOR THE NAVY-HR 2426, permits the Navy to serve oleomargarine to its men. Passed House only.

USAFA APPOINTMENTS FOR CAP CADETS—HR. 5623, authorizes nomina-tion of 40 cadets for USAFA from among members of the Civil Air Patrol. Passed House only.

USMC LT. GENERALS-HR 7028, authorizes the Marine Corps to continue to have five lieutenant generals in time of peace. Passed House only.

MEDAL OF HONOR PENSIONS—HR 735, increases from $10 to $100 per month the amount paid to holders of Congressional Medal. Passed House only.

WWI CADETS - HR 5055, provides that service of cadets and midshipmen at the Service Academies during WWI and Spanish-American War shall be considered active military or naval wartime service. Passed House only.

POW LEAVE CREDITS-S. 1600, provides that leave accrued by members of the Armed Forces while held as POWs in Korea shall not be counted in de-termining maximum amount of leave which they may accumulate or have to their credit. Passed Senate only.

PROTECTION AGAINST BODILY ATTACK—HR 5205, extends to uniformed members of Armed Forces same protection against bodily attack as is now granted to USCG. Passed House only.

ASSISTANT SECRETARIES FOR R&D—HR 11575, authorizes an additional Assistant Secretary for the Army, Navy and Air Force. Passed House only.

HOUSE BOOSTS FAMILY HOUSING

Told by its Banking and Currency Committee that lack of adequate housing "is clearly one of the most harassing problems in the Services," the House this week voted to add $1.1 billion to the Capehart Housing program and extend this week voted to add $1.1 billion to the Capehart Housing program and extenu its life three years beyond 30 Sept. 1956.

The House action would provide 49,000 units, in addition to the 101,000 previously authorized. The bill, as voted by the House and sent to the Senate, "directs" the Defense Department to acquire 83,000 privately owned Wherry Housing units and turn them into government quarters. This means they would be occupied at the cost of an individual's rental allowance.

The House raised from $13,500 to $16,500 the maximum average limit on new units and changed net floor area restrictions to provide sliding scales in

Turboprop Proving Speeded By MATS Hour Flight Tests

Flight testing of turboprop engines by MATS, now totaling 16,000 airborne en-gine hours, has accelerated development of two new engine types and will speed their early use in Air Force operations, including overog a MATS report. overocean flights, according to a MAIS report.

Flown by the 1700th Test Squadron (Turboprop) at Kelly AFB, Tex., since 20 January 1955, the two types of engines, the Pratt and Whitney T-34 with 6,000 horsepower and the Allison YT-56 with 3,250 horsepower, have piled up 16 times the pagine hours previously flown by the the engine hours previously flown by the Air Force with airplanes powered by turboprops only.

Lt. Gen. Joseph Smith, USAF, Commander MATS, expressed his satisfaction with progress achieved. Time between overhauls has been increased from 200 to 500 hours for the T-34 and other information gained will speed up our phassis of the pay C-133 turboyron transing-in of the new C-133 turboprop transport when it is delivered. Data on pro-pellers and engines have already been ap-plied to the C-130 transport.

In the accelerated testing program MATS has flown six "flying test beds:" two YC-97's with four T-34-P5 engines each, two twin-engined YC-131's with YT-56-A3 engines and two YC-121C's each powered by four T-34-P6 engines. Overgeen flights were made by the YC-97 ocean flights were made by the YC-97 across both the Pacific and the Atlantic.

The YC-121C, which was delivered to MATS in February, 1956, has flown to Europe and back. The present turboprop engine testing program is approximately half completed, Lt. Col. Samuel Burgess, USAF, commander of the 1700th revealed. Tests of the YC-131 have been finished and the YC-97's have reached 1,000 hours each. YC-121 flights will extend into next

During all these tests the 1700th found buring all these tests the front found that both types of engines performed well but that another starting system would be desirable in place of the present compressed air starter. Other systems, including a small gas turbine, are being studied.

Twice the MATS test fliers have flown Twice the MATS test filers have how the engines almost around the clock. Two YC-97J's flew 46 hours 35 minutes in a 24-hour period on 30 May 1956, while the two YC-131C's flew 46 hours 20 minutes with 24 hours on 1 September, last year.

NOW HEAR THIS

The word from "topside" is that the Army and Air Force may quit speaking of the number of per-sonnel they have "on board."

During Senate Armed Services During Senate Armed Services Committee hearings on the Regular Officer Augmentation bill, the Army witness, Maj. Gen. Donald P. Booth, USA, and the Air Force witness, Brig. Gen. Elvin S. Ligon, jr., USAF, referred a number of times to their "on board" strength.

Chairman Richard B. (D-Ga), wondered out loud if the "new" system of describing mili-tary manpower in the Army and AF is connected in any way with the fact that "an Admiral is serv-ing as Chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff."

There was general laughter but

U. S. COAST GUARD

Commandant—Vice Adm. Alfred C. Richmond Secretary of The Treasury—George M. Humphrey

THE Coast Guard will construct seven new loran (Long Range Navigation Aid) stations in the Caribbean area during the next year.

The Air Force Reserve, through operation "Sixteen Tons"—the largest airlift in its history—is ferrying materials and loran equipment from Floyd Bennett Field, N.Y., to San Juan, Puerto Rico.

The airlift, which got underway on 22 June, is about one-third completed. To date, over 300,000 pounds of materials have been shuttled, some 27,000 miles flown, and approximately 1,500 flying hours have been logged. It is anticipated that the significant of the state of the sta that the airlift will continue to operate until 1 October. About 1 million pounds of materials will have been airlifted in about 200 sorties.

The "on-the-air" target date for all seven stations is 15 March 1957.

New stations will be constructed at the following sites: San Salvador; Cape Francis Viejo, Dominican Republic; Cape San Juan, Puerto Rico; St. Kitts, British West Indies; Tobago Island, British West Indies; Sabo Rojo, Dominican Republic; and Pera Beach, Jamaica.

A contract for construction of the station at Cape San Juan already has been awarded. Construction starts on the others which await completion of negotitions for acquisition of the selected

Appointments

President Eisenhower has appointed 7 Coast Guard officers to permanent ranks.

Of the total, one is a captain, 38 are ommanders, 27 lieutenant commanders, 52 lieutenants and 39 chief warrants, W-2. The offcers are appointed with permanent dates of rank the same as the date of rank in temporary grade.

In the case of the warrant officers, however, they may be given the same permanent date of rank as their tempo-rary grade or a date of rank to be determined under provisions of the War-rant Officer Act of 1954.

OK HOUSEHOLD GOODS REFUND

Approximately 700 members of the Army, Navy, Air Force and Marine Corps who were required to pay part of the cost of shipping their household goods back to the States from overseas station; will get refunds totalling $68,500 under terms of legislation approved by the Congress this week.

The charges in question resulted from changed shipping regulations which made it necessary for some personnel who shipped more than 9,000 pounds of household goods overseas at Government expense to pay for the excess when the goods were shipped back to the States. The reduced allowance was put into effect by the Congress and the measure provides for reimbursement since such personnel were led to believe the return shipment would be at Government expense. ment expense.

The measure affects personnel who were ordered to Alaskan or overseas assignment prior to 10 July 1952 and who returned to the U. S. on 30 June

D375 (Series D) MAXIMUM OUTPUT CAPACITY

This is the 12-cylinder V-type Caterpillar D397 (Series D) with Turbocharger.

The Turbocharger uses exhaust heat to drive a supercharger, which in turn boosts efficiency and fuel economy.

These powerful engines add still greater range to the Caterpillar line-up of modern heavy-duty diesels. They are now available as engines, electric sets, and as marine engines. Both are available Turbocharged, roots-blown or naturally aspirated.

Caterpillar Diesels are modern heavy-duty, 4-cycle engines, compactly designed and built to deliver long, dependable work life with low maintenance cost. They are easy to move, easy to maintain, and require no elaborate foundation or housing, no overhead crane for servicing. It is unnecessary to buy an oversize engine to take care of future expansion, for any amount of additional power can be provided by simply installing more CAT* units. For further information on these modern engines, contact Caterpillar Tractor Co., Peoria, Illinois, U.S.A.
